The Cradle of the Republic:

JAMESTOWN AND JAMES RIVER.

By LYON GARDINER TYLER, LL. D.,

PRESIDENT OF THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY,
WILLIAMSBURG, VIRGINIA.

Price, $1.50.

From the New York "Critic," November, 1900:

"In a volume entitled THE CRADLE OF THE REPUBLIC, Jamestown and along the James River, from its settlement to the Revolution, is described by Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, the President of William and Mary College. The region is, as every one knows, overflowing with historic interest, and Dr. Tyler is an enthusiast well fitted for the task in hand. Many of the pictures show the splendid homes from which came the heroes of the Revolution and of later times."

From the Chicago "Dial," a semi-monthly journal of literary criticism, etc.:

"President Tyler has succeeded in rehabilitating and revivifying it (Jamestown) so that one can have a pretty good idea of the place as it appeared more than two hundred years ago, and an excellent impression of the sort of people that walked its streets and shared the difficulties of its life in the formative days of our country. There are maps and charts, a number of pictures of the historic homes on the James, some reproductions of early prints of Jamestown, and a few other illustrations of importance. One of the most interesting chapters is that which gives the origin of the names used along the river from Newport News to Richmond, showing how old names are retained long after individuals who bear them have passed from the scene."

From the Boston "Transcript," August 25, 1900:

"Dr. Tyler has given a study on Virginia which, though brief, summarizes the subject so that he who wishes entertaining reading, a companion of the romantic novel, a history of the social, political and economic life of Virginia, or a guide to James River, will find a combination happily blended. Dr. Tyler is not a space writer, but an historical student, with a talent for concise statement."

From the Richmond "Times," August 19, 1900:

"It is the work of a scholar on the historic places from the head of tide-water on James River to the sea. . . . Prof. Tyler has never done a better piece of work."

From the Richmond "Dispatch":

"In this book and in the eight or ten volumes of the William and Mary Quarterly Magazine of History and Biography, of which President Tyler is editor and publisher, he has accomplished more for the preservation of materials for the history of Virginia than has been done through the efforts of any other single individual perhaps in this century, if we except Alexander Brown, of Nelson county, Virginia."

From the "Virginia Magazine of History and Biography," October, 1900:

"A study of this valuable work gives one for the first time a true idea of what the settlement was like."
